

Immigration patterns in Finland

Immigration to Finland is concentrated in the southernmost region of the county. Although some might hypothesize that this can be explained by differences in population density, evaluating the population born abroad on a logarithmic scale and as a percent of the total population reveals that the majority of immigrants are clustered near the capitol region.

